Summer weather has come to the island in full force after a long cold spring, showing promise of a warm season ahead.

WEATHER: Beaver Island weather as recorded by Fire Officer Bill Wagner for the month of March.

Weather on Beaver Island for the month of May, was rather cool and dry. Fire hazard for the last of May was high, but only one small fire occurred. Ideal camping weather existed on the last half, warm days and cool nights.

Average daytime temperatures was 56.1 degrees, with the high temperature of 75 degrees falling on the 26th.

Nighttime temperatures were cooler with an average of 36.5 degrees and the low of 27 degrees falling on the 21st. Last rain fall for the month fell on the 23rd.

Two and a half inches of rain fell during the month with a trace of snow on the ground on the forenoon of the 4th of May.

GAME NEWS: With the first of June came the opening of the Bass fishing season. The first week-end of the season found most of the little bays of Garden and Hog islands occupied by fishermen. Luck, as always, varies but some nice catches were brought in. Fishing in the harbor certainly can't be ignored this year, for some nice catches have been brought in. Ron Wojan, of St. James, started off the season with two nice bass and a fair sized steelhead trout taken from the harbor. Next in line, was our visiting dentist, Nelson Smith, who caught a nice 4 lb. small mouth bass and has been catching his limit ever since in the harbor.

The level of Lake Michigan is up 12 to 14 inches over last year and for some reason this seems to bring about better fishing results. Another good sign in favor of the fishing future was brought to light by a recent check made by the Bureau of Commercial Fishing. The streams of the island were carefully checked for larvae of the lamprey eel, which was the major cause of the loss of our lake trout and whitefish. The end result was a definite negative, showing cause to believe that the reign of the dreaded eel may be over. If all goes well in the future, the islands may once more be the center of some of the most fabulous sport fishing in the country.

HIGHWAY PATROL: New to the island this summer will be the presence of a Michigan State Police trooper. As the island grows the need for more law enforcement is more than apparent. During the summer months, a trooper will be assigned to the island to help fill this need. Some conditions are and have been to the danger point for some time and hopes are running high that these conditions can be remedied before it is too late.

C.M.U. OPENS FOR THE SEASON: Central Michigan University Beaver Island Center reopened this month for the summer. Many of the students returning were here last year or in some previous year. Needless to say, everyone is happy to see them all back and to welcome the newcomers.
